I. INTRODUCTION

1. This Memorandum Opinion and Order addresses three petitions Low Tech Designs, Inc. (LTD) filed with the Commission on July 11, 1997, for "assumption of jurisdiction" of arbitration proceedings,¹ pursuant to section 252(e)(5) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.² Section 252(e)(5) authorizes the Commission to preempt a state commission in any proceeding or matter in which the state commission "fails to act to carry out its responsibility" under section 252.³ Section 252 sets out the procedures by which telecommunications carriers may request and obtain interconnection, resale services or unbundled network elements from an incumbent local exchange carrier (LEC) either through voluntary negotiations or through mediation or arbitration by state commissions.⁴

2. LTD contends that the Illinois Commerce Commission (Illinois Commission), the Georgia Public Service Commission (Georgia Commission), and the Public Service Commission of South Carolina (South Carolina Commission) each failed to fulfill its duty under section 252(b) to arbitrate failed negotiations between LTD and Illinois Bell Telephone Company d/b/a Ameritech Illinois (Ameritech), BellSouth Telecommunications, Inc. (BellSouth), and GTE South, Inc. (GTE), respectively. Each of the three state commissions dismissed or denied LTD's arbitration petition on the ground that LTD did not satisfy a statutory prerequisite to invoke compulsory arbitration under section 252(b).⁵ For the reasons discussed below, we find that LTD has not proven that the Illinois, Georgia, or South Carolina commissions "failed to act" on its requests for arbitration, within the meaning of our rules implementing section 252(e)(5).⁶ We therefore deny LTD's petitions and do not preempt the jurisdiction of these state commissions. As the petitions raise common issues for the Commission's consideration, we address LTD's three petitions in this Memorandum Opinion and Order.⁷

II. BACKGROUND

A. Statutory Provisions

3. Congress adopted sections 251 and 252 of the Act to foster local exchange competition by imposing certain requirements on incumbent LECs that are designed to facilitate the entry of competing telecommunications carriers. Section 251 describes the various requirements designed to promote market entry, including incumbent LECs' obligations to provide to requesting telecommunications carriers interconnection, unbundled network elements and services for resale.⁸ Section 252 sets forth the procedures by which telecommunications carriers may request and obtain interconnection, unbundled network elements and services for resale from an incumbent LEC pursuant to section 251.⁹ Specifically, section 252 establishes a scheme whereby telecommunications carriers may obtain interconnection with the incumbent according to agreements fashioned through (1) voluntary negotiations among the carriers, (2) mediation by state commissions, and (3) arbitration by state commissions.¹⁰ These interconnection agreements must then be submitted for approval to the appropriate state commission.¹¹

⁶ Implementation of the Local Competition Provisions in the Telecommunications Act of 1996, First Report and Order, CC Docket No. 96-98, 11 FCC Rcd 15499, 16128 (1996), para. 1285 (Local Competition Order), *aff'd in part and vacated in part sub nom. Aug. 18, 1997), further recon. pending; see also 47 C.F.R. §§ 51.801(b), 51.803(b).

⁸ See generally 47 U.S.C. § 251(c). For purposes of this order, the interconnection, access to unbundled elements, services for resale and other items for which incumbent local exchange carriers have a duty to negotiate pursuant to section 251(c)(1) are sometimes referred to collectively as "interconnection."

¹⁰ See 47 U.S.C. § 252(a), (b).

4. Section 252(e)(5) directs the Commission to assume responsibility for any proceeding or matter in which the state commission "fails to act to carry out its responsibility" under section 252:

(5) COMMISSION TO ACT IF STATE WILL NOT ACT. -- If a State commission fails to act to carry out its responsibility under this section in any proceeding or other matter under this section, then the Commission shall issue an order preempting the State commission's jurisdiction of that proceeding or matter within 90 days after being notified (or taking notice) of such failure, and shall assume the responsibility of the State commission under this section with respect to the proceeding or matter and act for the State commission.¹²

B. Commission's Regulations

5. In our Local Competition Order, we adopted "interim procedures" to exercise our preemption authority under section 252(e)(5) in order to "provide for an efficient and fair transition from state jurisdiction should we have to assume the responsibility of the state commission" ¹³ We concluded that we would not take an "expansive view" of what constitutes a state commission's "failure to act" for purposes of section 252(e)(5).¹⁴ Rather, we interpreted "failure to act" to mean a state's failure to complete its duties in a timely manner. We limited the instances under which Commission preemption pursuant to section 252(e)(5) is appropriate to "where a state commission fails to respond, within a reasonable time, to a request for mediation or arbitration, or fails to complete arbitration within the time limits of section 252(b)(4)(C)."¹⁵ Under our rules, "[t]he party seeking preemption [pursuant to section 252(e)(5)] must prove that the state [commission] has failed to act to carry out its responsibilities under section 252 of the Act."¹⁶ Further, we concluded that once we assume jurisdiction of a matter pursuant to section 252(e)(5), "any and all further action regarding that proceeding or matter will be before the Commission," rather than before the state commission

¹³ Local Competition Order, 11 FCC Rcd at 16127, para. 1283. We adopted the procedures for exercising our section 252(e)(5) preemption authority on an interim basis in order to allow us "to learn from the initial experiences and gain a better understanding of what types of situations may arise that require Commission action." Id. at 16128, para. 1284.

that has failed to act.¹⁷ The United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, in its review of the Local Competition Order, acknowledged that the Commission has authority, pursuant to section 252(e)(5), to preempt a state commission's jurisdiction if that commission fails to fulfill its duties under section 252 of the Act.¹⁸

C. Procedural History

1. LTD's Petition for Arbitration Before the Illinois Commission

6. LTD asked Ameritech to commence negotiations for interconnection on August 23, 1996.¹⁹ Ameritech acknowledged LTD's request on August 27, 1996.²⁰ LTD maintains that it was a "new entrant telecommunications carrier not certificated in Illinois" at the time it initiated negotiations with Ameritech.²¹

7. On January 30, 1997, following unsuccessful negotiations with Ameritech, LTD filed a petition for arbitration with Ameritech before the Illinois Commission.²² LTD stated therein that it initially intended to enter the local exchange market under the resale provisions of the Act and that it also intended to offer enhanced call processing services by utilizing unbundled network elements.²³ LTD's Illinois petition set forth six issues related to access to and interconnection with Ameritech's AIN. The seventh issue related to Ameritech's duty under the Act to negotiate in good faith.²⁴ The arbitration petition did not set forth any issues relating to resale, and noted that resale issues, and other issues that the parties had not yet discussed, would be presented at a later time if the parties were unable to negotiate an agreement.²⁵

8. The Hearing Examiner appointed to consider the dispute scheduled an initial pre-hearing conference for February 11, 1997, at which a detailed schedule for the arbitration was established.²⁶ On February 14, 1997, the Hearing Examiner granted Ameritech's motion to strike the issue in the petition relating to Ameritech's duty to negotiate in good faith.²⁷ One week later, the parties presented oral arguments and the Hearing Examiner directed LTD to respond to two data requests from Ameritech.²⁸

9. On February 24, 1997, Ameritech filed its response to the arbitration petition, as well as a motion to deny the petition. Ameritech argued that LTD lacked standing to arbitrate pursuant to section 252 because LTD was not a "telecommunications carrier" as defined in the Act.²⁹ Ameritech further asserted that LTD's petition was not a request for interconnection, access to unbundled elements network elements, resale, or any other matter that can be arbitrated under the Act.³⁰ On February 28, 1997, the Illinois Commission staff and LTD each filed a response to Ameritech's motion to deny the petition; the Illinois Commission staff supported the motion, and LTD opposed it.³¹ Ameritech filed a reply and proposed order on March 4, 1997.³² The Hearing Examiner issued a Proposed Order on March 10, 1997 that recommended that the Illinois Commission dismiss LTD's arbitration petition on the ground that LTD was not a "telecommunications carrier" as defined by the Act.³³ Briefs and reply briefs were filed on March 17 and 21, 1997, respectively.³⁴

10. The Illinois Commission issued an arbitration decision on March 31, 1997 dismissing LTD's petition.³⁵ It dismissed the petition on the ground that LTD was not a "telecommunications carrier," as defined in the Act, and, therefore, was not entitled to compulsory arbitration with Ameritech under section 252(b).³⁶ Although LTD was not certified to operate in Illinois, the Illinois Commission concluded that this was not dispositive of the case.³⁷ Rather, the Illinois Commission concluded that LTD was not a "telecommunications carrier," as defined in section 3(44) of the Act, because it did not provide, at the time of the arbitration, "telecommunications service," as defined in section 3(46) of the Act.³⁸ The Illinois Commission concluded that "[i]t is not a burdensome requirement under the 1996 Act for an entity to show some evidence that it has the financial, managerial, and technical ability to serve the public, by showing that -- at least somewhere in this country -- the entity is a telecommunications carrier actively engaged in the provision of telecommunications service."³⁹ The Illinois Commission did not address the other issues raised in Ameritech's motion to deny the petition.⁴⁰

2. LTD's Petition for Arbitration Before the Georgia Commission

11. LTD asked BellSouth to commence negotiations for interconnection in Georgia pursuant to the 1996 Act on August 12, 1996.⁴¹ BellSouth acknowledged LTD's request on August 19, 1996, and stated that it was ready to begin negotiations with LTD. LTD maintains that it was a "new entrant telecommunications carrier not certificated in Georgia" at the time that it initiated negotiations with BellSouth.⁴²

12. On January 16, 1997, after unproductive negotiations with BellSouth, LTD filed a petition for arbitration with BellSouth before the Georgia Commission.⁴³ BellSouth filed an answer and motion to dismiss the arbitration petition on February 14, 1997.⁴⁴ A pre-arbitration conference was held on March 10, 1997, at which the question of whether LTD was a "telecommunications carrier" proposing a "telecommunications service" was discussed.⁴⁵ The Hearing Officer issued a pre-hearing order on March 28, 1997, ruling, among other things, that the issue of whether LTD was a "telecommunications carrier" proposing a "telecommunications service" had not been resolved and would be among the issues decided by the Georgia Commission.⁴⁶ The parties next engaged in discovery and filed written testimony in late March and early April.⁴⁷

13. On April 9, 1997, BellSouth filed a second motion to dismiss the arbitration, in which it challenged LTD's status as a "telecommunications carrier."⁴⁸ LTD filed its response on April 11, 1997, and the Georgia Commission heard oral argument on this issue at the outset of the arbitration hearing on April 17, 1997.⁴⁹ The parties filed supplemental briefs on this issue. On May 19, 1997, the Georgia Commission issued an order dismissing the arbitration.⁵⁰ The Georgia Commission dismissed without prejudice LTD's arbitration petition on the ground that LTD was not a telecommunications carrier in Georgia and, therefore, was not entitled to initiate arbitration before the Georgia Commission under section 252(b).⁵¹ The Georgia Commission stated that it would not consider an entity to be a telecommunications carrier in Georgia until that entity obtains a certificate of authority from the Georgia Commission, pursuant to a provision in Georgia's Telecommunications and Competition Development Act of 1996 that prohibits a telecommunications company from providing telecommunications service without a certificate of authority from the state commission.⁵² The Georgia Commission also concluded that an entity must propose to offer a telecommunications service in order to be eligible to enforce section 251 and 252's requirements through compulsory arbitration.⁵³ The Georgia Commission noted that LTD's proposed service did not appear to be a telecommunications service, but that LTD would have an opportunity in the hearing on its application for a certificate of authority to establish that its proposed service is a telecommunications service.⁵⁴

14. On May 27, 1997, LTD filed with the Georgia Commission a Motion for Reconsideration, Rehearing and Oral Argument of Commission Order Dismissing the Arbitration.⁵⁵ LTD asked for a complete arbitration or, alternatively, a formal rehearing and oral argument. Further, LTD asked the Georgia Commission to approach the Commission jointly with LTD, to obtain rulings regarding eligibility for arbitration of the least cost routing service LTD proposed to offer, should the Georgia Commission deny LTD's other requests.⁵⁶ On July 7, 1997, the Georgia Commission issued an order denying LTD's motion, and affirming the May 19, 1997 order dismissing LTD's arbitration petition for lack of jurisdiction because LTD has not obtained a certificate of authority in Georgia, and therefore, is not a telecommunications carrier.⁵⁷ The Georgia Commission also adopted in the Reconsideration

⁵² Id. at 3; see also Ga. Code Ann. § 46-5-163(a). The Georgia Commission concluded that Georgia's certification requirement is not preempted by the Act and is consistent with 47 U.S.C. § 253(b). The Georgia Commission acknowledged that under FCC rules, a telecommunications carrier may initiate negotiations with an incumbent LEC without first obtaining a state certificate of authority, but noted that the Commission issued no such rule with respect to arbitrations. Id. at 4; see also Local Competition Order, 11 FCC Rcd 15577, para. 154; 47 C.F.R. § 51.301(c)(4).

⁵⁴ Id. at 5-6. LTD explained at the arbitration hearing that it proposed a least cost routing service in which the customer places a long-distance call relying upon LTD to identify and select the lowest price long-distance provider. The local exchange service would be provided by another carrier (such as BellSouth), and the interexchange service would be provided by the carrier to which LTD routed the call. LTD might place a charge on the customer's bill for the routing service, but the customer still would be billed for local and interexchange service by the other carriers. Based on the Act's definition of "telecommunications service" as the transmission, between or among points specified by the user, of information of the user's choosing, to the public for a fee, the Georgia Commission determined that LTD would not be providing a telecommunications service, because it would not be providing any transmission for the call. Georgia Commission Order at 5; see also 47 U.S.C. § 3(43), (46).

Order a recommendation of the Consumers' Utility Counsel Division of the Governor's Office of Consumer Affairs that if and when LTD obtains a certificate of authority to provide telecommunications service in Georgia, it will not have to wait an additional 135 days, after becoming certificated, to file a new petition for arbitration pursuant to section 252(b)(1).⁵⁸

3. LTD's Petition for Arbitration Before the South Carolina Commission

15. LTD filed for certification by the South Carolina Commission in March 1996, shortly after passage of the 1996 Act.⁵⁹ The South Carolina Commission rejected LTD's application for failure to file proposed tariffs, and LTD did not refile its application.⁶⁰

16. LTD asked GTE to commence negotiations for interconnection on August 12, 1996.⁶¹ GTE acknowledged LTD's request on August 19, 1996, and stated that it was ready to begin interconnection negotiations with LTD in South Carolina.⁶² LTD maintains that it was a "new entrant telecommunications carrier not certificated in South Carolina" at the time it initiated negotiations with GTE.⁶³

17. On or about January 17, 1997, after unsuccessful negotiations with GTE, LTD filed a petition for arbitration with the South Carolina Commission.⁶⁴ The petition requested that the South Carolina Commission arbitrate several issues between LTD and GTE to establish an interconnection agreement.⁶⁵ LTD was aware of a provision of South Carolina law, passed in May, 1996,⁶⁶ that defined a "new entrant LEC" as a "telecommunications company holding a certificate of public convenience and necessity issued by the commission pursuant to Section 58-9-280(B) after December 31, 1995, to provide local exchange service within a certificated geographic service area of the State."⁶⁷ LTD admitted in its arbitration petition that it was not certificated in South Carolina and asked for relief, for arbitration purposes, from South Carolina's certification requirement.⁶⁸

⁵⁹ LTD South Carolina Petition at 1.

18. GTE filed a response in opposition to the arbitration petition on or about February 3, 1997, and LTD filed an answer to GTE's response on or about February 7, 1997.⁶⁹ On March 4, 1997, the South Carolina Commission issued an order denying LTD's arbitration petition, on the basis that LTD lacked the required state certification.⁷⁰ It rejected LTD's argument that the South Carolina statutory certification requirement was a "barrier to entry" under section 253(a)⁷¹ and instead maintained that the statutory provision was a "requirement[] necessary to . . . protect the public safety and welfare, ensure the continued quality of telecommunications services, and safeguard the rights of consumers," consistent with section 253(b).⁷²

D. LTD's Petitions for Commission "Assumption of Jurisdiction"

19. LTD requests in its petitions that the Commission "assume jurisdiction" of the arbitration proceedings it requested before the Illinois, Georgia, and South Carolina commissions, pursuant to section 252(e)(5). It alleges that the three state commissions "failed to fulfill [their] duty to arbitrate failed negotiations" between LTD and Ameritech, BellSouth, and GTE, respectively, pursuant to section 252(b).⁷³ It does not allege, however, that any of the state commissions "failed to act" upon its arbitration request in a timely manner, nor that ⁷¹ According to the South Carolina Commission, S.C. The "applicants" who propose to operate as a telephone utility are defined as "new entrant local exchange carriers" in S.C. Code Ann. § 58-9-10(13), and LTD would be a "new entrant LEC." any of the arbitration decisions were untimely rendered.⁷⁴ Rather, it challenges the substantive bases upon which each state commission determined that LTD was not entitled to invoke compulsory arbitration with the relevant incumbent LEC under the Act.

20. LTD describes itself in each of the petitions as a "new entrant requesting telecommunications carrier attempting to enter the local telecommunications services market."⁷⁵ Its stated intention is to offer resold local exchange services and new telecommunications services using unbundled network elements.⁷⁶ LTD maintains in the petitions filed with the Commission, as it did in its arbitration petitions, that it is a "telecommunications carrier," as "defined and anticipated by Sections 3(49) [sic] and 252(a)(1) of the Act, respectively, and applicable FCC rules and interpretations."⁷⁷

21. LTD raises identical arguments in its petitions requesting that the Commission preempt the Georgia and South Carolina arbitration proceedings, as the Georgia and South Carolina commissions dismissed or denied LTD's arbitration petition based on its failure to obtain certification pursuant to state statutory requirements. LTD states that "entities" entitled to negotiate with an incumbent LEC under sections 251 and 252 of the Act should have the right to arbitrate with the incumbent LEC in the event the negotiations are not successful, regardless of whether a carrier has complied with a state's certification requirements.⁷⁸ It contends that the Commission agreed with LTD's view that the right to negotiate and arbitrate should not be dependent upon state certification requirements when the Commission concluded in the Local Competition Order that state certification was not a preliminary requirement for good faith negotiations between requesting telecommunications carriers and incumbent LECs.⁷⁹ LTD further maintains that, because arbitrations result from the failure to obtain a negotiated interconnection agreement, state laws denying arbitration to a new entrant that has been in negotiations with an incumbent LEC violate section 253(a) of the Act.⁸⁰ LTD contends that such state laws "ha[ve] the effect of prohibiting 'any entity,' such as an uncertificated new entrant telecommunications carrier, [from] the ability to offer telecommunications services."⁸¹ LTD also asserts that the Georgia and South Carolina commissions' practice of approving negotiated agreements between incumbent LECs and new entrant telecommunications companies, without requiring the new entrant companies to be certificated, but refusing to arbitrate an unsuccessfully negotiated agreement between an incumbent LEC and an uncertificated entity, violates the "competitively neutral basis" requirement of section 253(b).⁸²

22. Finally, LTD offers several "business reasons" why small "new entrant telecommunications carriers," such as LTD, should not be required to obtain state certification in advance of arbitration. LTD claims that it cannot say with certainty that it has a complete and viable business plan and will be able to offer a full range of telecommunications services in a particular state until it is able to obtain, through arbitration, the unbundled network elements and rates it needs. Further, it contends that its inability to finalize a business plan prior to the completion of arbitration will negatively affect its ability to attract investors.⁸³ LTD maintains that it should not be required to incur the expense of obtaining certification until it is certain that it can obtain the unbundled network elements necessary for the provisioning of services.⁸⁴

the ground that LTD was not providing telecommunications services in another state.⁸⁵ LTD argues that the Illinois Commission would not consider LTD to be a "telecommunications carrier" under the Act until LTD is providing a telecommunications service somewhere, but that LTD, as a new entrant, is unable to provide telecommunications service until it can reach an interconnection agreement with an incumbent LEC.⁸⁶ It maintains that the requirement that a new entrant must be offering services in order to arbitrate precludes new entrants from entering the market in violation of section 253(a).⁸⁷ LTD also contends that the Commission's definition of "telecommunications carrier" in the Local Competition Order supports its contention that new entrant requesting carriers such as LTD, that have engaged in negotiations with incumbent LECs for the purpose of offering public telecommunications for a fee, are "telecommunications carriers" under the Act.⁸⁸

E. Responses of the State Commissions and the Incumbent LECs

24. The Georgia, South Carolina, and Illinois commissions urge the Commission to dismiss or deny LTD's petition involving their state proceeding. They contend that they carried out their responsibility with respect to LTD's arbitration petitions, that they did not "fail[] to act" for purposes of section 252(e)(5), and that the Commission lacks jurisdiction to conduct an arbitration on LTD's behalf.⁸⁹ The Illinois Commission asserts that, under the Commission's interpretation of "failure to act" in the Local Competition Order, LTD has the burden of establishing that the Illinois Commission failed to respond to LTD's request for arbitration within a reasonable time frame.⁹⁰ It specifically contends that LTD has not met this burden and that a "disagreement with a state commission over an interpretation of the law is not a 'failure to act' as that term is used in §252(e)(5)."⁹¹

25. The Georgia and South Carolina commissions also respond to LTD's section 253 argument. They contend that their state certification requirements do not constitute "barriers to entry" under section 253 and that these requirements are consistent with the Act and the Commission's rules.⁹² In response to LTD's argument that it is inconsistent for the state commission to approve negotiated agreements when the requesting party is non-certificated, but to dismiss or deny LTD's arbitration petition, both state commissions contend that they are required to expend a substantially greater amount of time and administrative resources to conduct an arbitration, than to approve a negotiated agreement.⁹³ They contend that they are entitled to ascertain whether a company can qualify to provide the proposed service before undertaking a costly and potentially lengthy arbitration.⁹⁴ The South Carolina Commission further notes that all entities eventually must file a certification application and undergo examination before they can provide local service.⁹⁵

26. The Georgia Commission also states that LTD's motion for reconsideration was based, in part, on the argument that it should be considered a reseller and that the dismissal of its arbitration petition violates section 251(b).⁹⁶ The Georgia Commission asserts that it properly determined that LTD is not certificated as a local service reseller in Georgia, and that its arbitration petition was premised upon its request that certain AIN and related items be made available as unbundled network elements under section 251(c).⁹⁷ Further, the Georgia Commission was not persuaded that arbitration may be pursued under section 252(b) by a non-certificated entity even if that entity pressed claims solely under section 251(b)'s resale obligations. It states that the Commission, pursuant to section 253(b), must defer to Georgia's statutory requirement that a reseller of local exchange services must obtain a certificate.⁹⁸ Finally, the Georgia Commission reiterated the commitment in its arbitration decision to treat a new petition for arbitration filed by LTD as timely if LTD obtains a certificate to provide telecommunications services in Georgia.⁹⁹

27. Ameritech, BellSouth, and GTE also contend that there is no basis for Commission preemption of the Georgia, South Carolina and Illinois arbitration proceedings, respectively, under section 252(e)(5) of the Act or section 51.801(b) of the Commission's rules.¹⁰⁰ They state that the state commissions neither failed to initiate an arbitration proceeding in a timely manner, nor failed to reach a decision within the time limit established by the Act.¹⁰¹ BellSouth and GTE further state that LTD's sole remedy is to seek review of the arbitration decision in the United States District Court, pursuant to section 252(b)(6).¹⁰² They argue that the Commission should not address the merits of the arbitration decisions, but if it does so, that it lacks authority to preempt Georgia and South Carolina's certification requirements.¹⁰³ They urge the Commission to reject LTD's argument that the certification requirement is not "competitively neutral." BellSouth also advances the argument that a state commission should not be required to devote its resources to arbitrate a dispute at the request of a person who may never qualify to offer telecommunications services in that state.¹⁰⁴ BellSouth contends that this reasoning is consistent with the Act's definition of "telecommunications carrier."¹⁰⁵

⁹⁹ Id. at 6-7. The Georgia Commission stated that LTD will not have to wait an additional 135 to 160 days, after becoming certificated, to file a new petition for arbitration pursuant to section 252(b)(1) of the Act. Although the statutory period cannot be waived, in view of the fact that the case presented a jurisdictional issue of first impression and that LTD has been in ongoing negotiations with BellSouth, the Georgia Commission determined that LTD's request for negotiations should be deemed a continuing request sufficient to meet the 135 to 160 day period in section 252(b)(1). Id. Alternatively, the Georgia Commission stated that LTD's remedy is to seek judicial review of the arbitration decision. Id. at 2 n.1.

28. LTD, in response to the oppositions of the state commissions and the incumbent LECs to its petitions, states that none of the parties produced evidence that the arbitration decisions resolved the differences between LTD and the relevant incumbent LEC, nor did they contend that LTD's petition was defective in any matter that would justify its dismissal or denial.¹⁰⁶ It contends that the basis upon which the Georgia Commission dismissed and the South Carolina Commission denied its petition, i.e., its alleged failure to satisfy state certification requirements, "is at odds with the pro-competitive intent of the Act."¹⁰⁷ It summarily asserts that these state commissions should not be permitted to use their section 253(b) authority as a tool to dismiss or deny "properly filed arbitration requests."¹⁰⁸

29. LTD states that section 252(a)(1) supports its contention that it is a "telecommunications carrier" entitled to arbitration under section 252(b).¹⁰⁹ Specifically, it contends that a party requesting interconnection, services or network elements from an incumbent LEC is necessarily a "requesting telecommunications carrier." It further relies on the following sentence in the legislative history of the Act to support its view that arbitration should be available to a new entrant such as LTD if negotiations with the relevant incumbent LEC fail: "the duties imposed under new section 251(b) make sense only in the context of a specific request from another telecommunications carrier or any other person who actually seeks to connect with or provide services using the LEC's network."¹¹⁰

30. LTD disputes the Georgia Commission, BellSouth and GTE's contention that it is required to seek review of the state commissions' arbitration decisions in federal district court. It maintains that section 252(e)(6) only requires district court review for parties that have been aggrieved by a state commission determination involving an interconnection agreement or a statement of generally available terms, and that Commission assumption of jurisdiction over LTD's arbitrations is the only remedy available to it.¹¹¹ It also states that the parties "ignore" 47 C.F.R. § 51.301(c)(4), which precludes an incumbent LEC from conditioning negotiation on a requesting telecommunications carrier first obtaining state certification, and repeats its argument that state commissions should likewise be required to arbitrate failed negotiations even if the requesting party is not certificated.¹¹² LTD further contends that the Eighth Circuit's decision in Iowa Utils. Bd. supports its position to the extent that it describes the entities that are able to avail themselves of arbitration as "competing companies, requesting new entrant, and competing telecommunications carriers," and recognizes that a final agreement, whether accomplished through negotiation or arbitration, "must" be approved by the state commission.¹¹³

III. DISCUSSION

31. Section 252(e)(5) directs the Commission to preempt the jurisdiction of a state commission in any proceeding or matter in which a state commission "fails to act to carry out its responsibility under [section 252]."¹¹⁴ Pursuant to our preemption jurisdiction under section 252(e)(5), we adopted rules to implement this statutory provision. For the reasons discussed below, we conclude that LTD has not proven that, because the Illinois, Georgia, and South Carolina commissions dismissed or denied LTD's arbitration petitions on the basis that LTD did not satisfy a statutory prerequisite to invoke compulsory arbitration under section 252(b), these state commissions "failed to act" on its arbitration requests. We find, based on the record before us, that these three state commissions did not "fail to act" under our rules

¹¹¹ LTD Ex Parte Georgia Comments at 3; LTD Ex Parte South Carolina Comments at 4. LTD bases its argument on the language of section 252(e)(6), which provides, in relevant part:

In any case in which a State commission makes a determination under this section, any party aggrieved by such determination may bring an action in an appropriate Federal district court to determine whether the agreement or statement meets the requirements of section 251 and this section.

¹¹³ LTD Ex Parte Georgia Comments at 4-5; LTD Ex Parte South Carolina Comments at 4-5; LTD Ex Parte Illinois Comments at 4-5 (emphasis added). LTD states that the Eighth Circuit uses the terms "competing companies," "requesting new entrant," and then "competing telecommunications carrier" to describe the entities that are able to avail themselves of the local competition provisions of the Act. It further states that the Eighth Circuit affirms that LTD has "followed the entry path provided in the Act by deciding to be a competing company, becoming a requesting new entrant, and then a competing telecommunications carrier." Id.

implementing section 252(e)(5), because they responded to LTD's requests for arbitration and rendered a final decision in each arbitration in a timely manner. We therefore deny LTD's petitions for Commission preemption of the Illinois, Georgia, and South Carolina arbitration proceedings.

32. LTD advances essentially two arguments in each of its petitions for Commission preemption pursuant to section 252(e)(5). First, LTD contends that the Georgia, Illinois, and South Carolina commissions "failed to act," because they did not conduct an arbitration that resolved the issues raised in the arbitration petitions.¹¹⁵ Second, LTD challenges the substantive bases upon which each state commission determined that LTD has not satisfied a statutory prerequisite to invoke arbitration under section 252(b).¹¹⁶

33. Neither of these arguments provides a basis for preemption under our rules implementing section 252(e)(5). With respect to the first argument, we conclude that these three state commissions have not "failed to act" under our rules implementing section 252(e)(5) solely because they dismissed or denied LTD's arbitration request on the ground that LTD is not entitled to invoke arbitration under section 252(b).¹¹⁷ In the Local Competition Order, we stated that we would not take an "expansive view" of what constitutes a state commission's failure to act, noting our belief that "states [would] meet their responsibilities and obligations under the 1996 Act."¹¹⁸ We therefore determined that we would preempt a state commission's jurisdiction for "failure to act" under section 252(e)(5) only in those "instances where a state commission fails to respond, within a reasonable time, to a request for mediation or arbitration, or fails to complete arbitration within the time limits of section

¹¹⁷ Although each of these three state commissions determined that LTD was not a telecommunications carrier entitled to invoke arbitration under section 252(b), the three state commissions characterized in different ways what they viewed as the fundamental defect in the arbitration requests. The Illinois Commission dismissed LTD's petition on the ground that LTD lacked standing to arbitrate, because the Illinois Commission concluded that LTD was not a "telecommunications carrier," as defined by the Act. Illinois Commission Arbitration Decision at 1, 4. The Georgia Commission dismissed LTD's arbitration petition for lack of jurisdiction, because the Georgia Commission concluded that LTD was not a telecommunications carrier, and therefore, did not satisfy a state requirement to be deemed a telecommunications carrier entitled to invoke arbitration under section 252(b). Georgia Commission Order at 6. The South Carolina Commission indicated only that LTD had not met a threshold state statutory requirement for invoking arbitration under section 252(b). South Carolina Commission Order at 4.

¹¹⁸ Local Competition Order, 11 FCC Rcd at 16128, para. 1285. Of course, the Commission may revisit its rules, should the need arise, although we do not do so at this time.

252(b)(4)(C)."¹¹⁹ Thus, under our current rules, a state commission does not "fail to act" when it dismisses or denies an arbitration petition on the ground that it is procedurally defective, the petitioner lacks standing to arbitrate, or the state commission lacks jurisdiction over the proceeding.

34. Applying our rules in these instances, we find that the Illinois, Georgia, and South Carolina commissions responded to LTD's request for arbitration by immediately initiating proceedings. After establishing pleading cycles and affording the parties an opportunity to present their arguments on the issue of whether LTD is entitled to invoke arbitration under section 252(b), each of the state commissions considered the issue and determined that LTD had not satisfied the statutory requirements to proceed with arbitration.¹²⁰

35. Moreover, LTD does not claim that the Georgia and South Carolina commissions acted outside of any statutory time frame. Although LTD contends that the Illinois Commission failed to complete its arbitration duty within the statutory time limits of section 252(b)(4)(C),¹²¹ we note that the Illinois Commission issued its Arbitration Decision approximately seven months after Ameritech received LTD's request for interconnection, well within any statutory deadline.¹²²

36. We further conclude that LTD's second argument does not provide a ground for preemption under our rules implementing section 252(e)(5). Because section 51.801 of our rules does not focus on the validity of state commission decisions, we do not see a basis under our rules for examining the underlying reasoning of these state commissions' decisions.

¹¹⁹ Id. at 16128, para. 1285; see also 47 C.F.R. § 51.801(b).

¹²⁰ In South Carolina, LTD raised the issue of its lack of state certification in its arbitration request, asking for relief from South Carolina's certification requirement. Given LTD's lack of state certification, the South Carolina Commission established a pleading schedule to give the parties the opportunity to address the question of whether LTD may invoke arbitration under section 252 prior to issuing its decision on this question. See supra paras. 17-18. LTD did not raise the issue of whether it had met the statutory prerequisites to invoke arbitration in its requests for arbitration in Illinois and Georgia. In those states, a hearing examiner was appointed to the case, a pre-arbitration conference was held, and a schedule for the arbitration was established. See supra paras. 7, 12. After the relevant incumbent LEC raised the issue of whether LTD met the statutory requirements to invoke arbitration, the parties were afforded an opportunity to present their arguments on the issue. See supra paras. 9-10, 13-14.

¹²¹ LTD Illinois Ex Parte Comments at 1-2.

¹²² See supra paras. 6-10. LTD's argument appears to be essentially that a state commission has not acted until it has ruled on the merits of the issues raised in the arbitration petition. As discussed above, this argument does not provide a ground for preemption under our rules. See supra para. 33. We further note that the Georgia and South Carolina commissions issued their decisions approximately eight months and seven months, respectively, after the relevant incumbent LEC received LTD's request for interconnection. See supra paras. 11-18.

We therefore cannot conclude that the Illinois, Georgia, and South Carolina commissions have "failed to act" under our rules implementing section 252(e)(5). Accordingly, we do not preempt the state commissions' jurisdiction and assume responsibility for these arbitrations.

37. We also reject LTD's argument that it has no forum in which to challenge the substantive bases of the state commissions' decisions that LTD is not entitled to invoke compulsory arbitration under section 252(b). LTD's argument is based on its interpretation of the language in section 252(e)(6), which it interprets to mean that federal district court review is available only "for parties that have been aggrieved by a State Commission determination involving an actual interconnection agreement or statement of generally available terms."¹²³ The Eighth Circuit, in its review of the Local Competition Order, recently stated that an aggrieved party should seek federal district court review pursuant to section 252(e)(6) "to attain review of state commission determinations under the Act."¹²⁴ Thus, under the Eighth Circuit's holding in Iowa Utils. Bd., LTD still may challenge these state commission determinations in federal district court pursuant to section 252(e)(6).

38. Finally, we note that, among its arguments, LTD contends that the legal requirements imposed by these state commissions violate section 253(a) and section 253(b).¹²⁵ LTD's petitions, however, do not seek preemption of these legal requirements pursuant to section 253(d).¹²⁶ Rather, LTD's petitions request only that the Commission assume responsibility for these arbitration proceedings pursuant to section 252(e)(5). We find that LTD has not set forth adequate record evidence that demonstrates that the legal requirements imposed by the Illinois, Georgia, and South Carolina commissions "prohibit or have the effect of prohibiting the ability of [LTD] to provide any interstate or intrastate telecommunications service."¹²⁷ For instance, LTD simply asserts that these state legal requirements are barriers to entry, but offers no record evidence to demonstrate that it cannot comply with the requirements.¹²⁸ LTD merely alleges in its Georgia and South Carolina preemption petitions, for example, that it has chosen not to obtain state certification for its own business reasons.¹²⁹ LTD has not provided a sufficient factual basis to demonstrate that these legal requirements materially inhibit or limit the ability of any competitor or potential competitor to compete in a fair and balanced legal and regulatory environment.¹³⁰ Accordingly, we do not express any views in this Memorandum Opinion and Order on the merits of LTD's section 253 arguments. Nevertheless, we note our concern about state requirements that "prohibit or have the effect of prohibiting the ability of any entity to provide any interstate or intrastate telecommunications service."¹³¹ If LTD chooses to file a section 253 petition, we would place such a petition on public notice pursuant to section 253(d).¹³² Upon review of the record received from all interested parties, we would take appropriate action under section 253(d).¹³³

39. In sum, we conclude that LTD has not met its burden of demonstrating that the Illinois Commission, Georgia Commission, or South Carolina Commission has "failed to act" within the meaning of our rules implementing section 252(e)(5). Rather, these three state commissions have met the requirements of our rules by responding in a timely manner to LTD's request for arbitration and rendering a final decision in the arbitration, dismissing or denying the petitions on the basis that LTD did not satisfy a statutory prerequisite to invoke arbitration under section 252(b). We therefore do not preempt the jurisdiction of these state commissions pursuant to the authority granted us in section 252(e)(5).

IV. CONCLUSION

40. For the foregoing reasons, we deny LTD's petitions for Commission assumption of jurisdiction of LTD's arbitration proceedings with Ameritech in Illinois, BellSouth in Georgia, and GTE in South Carolina.

V. ORDERING CLAUSES

41. Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that, pursuant to section 252 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and section 51.801(b) of the Commission's rules, 47 U.S.C. § 252 and 47 C.F.R. § 51.801(b), the three petitions for Commission assumption of jurisdiction filed by Low Tech Designs, Inc. on July 11, 1997, are DENIED.
